

OCT 24 1964

Named to Faculty

Paul W. Howerton, a pioneer in mechanized linguistics, has been appointed acting director of the American University's Center for Technology and Administration.

He has also been appointed visiting professor of technology and management in the University's School of Business Administration and the School of Government and Public Administration.

Howerton recently served as vice president and a director of Information for Industry, Inc., and general manager of the Washington firm's Communication Sciences Division.